

RELOCATORS MOVING GUIDE AND CONSIDERATION

- Make a start and collect boxes from supermarkets- if available
- Order boxes of various sizes to start- purchase more when required
- *work out a roughly estimated budget to cover what you will need to spend on your move as well as settling into your new home
- Ensure you have funds put aside to cover the main things- including final bills, storage, items required for the new property
- Decide on whether you will require help, need to arrange childcare, pet care in advance
- Advise relevant parties (regular deliveries, utilities, medical, contacts personal and business if relevant), etc
- Are you working- do you need to book days off to cover both the move and settling in (you may need 3-5 days to finish packing, move, unpack, get settled and of course rest)
- Start packing away things you can do without
- Do a little in each room and store boxes as close to the walls as possible
- As the time gets nearer start packing away more and more- enlist help if required-do you need more boxes?

- Try to tie up as many loose ends as possible
- Ensure your removals is booked for the right date, time and the correct size of van ordered
- What do you require at the new property (re-installation of appliances, curtains, carpet)
- Do you need to visit the new property before moving, is it ready, how and when will you get the keys?
- Do you need anything to be put into storage- arrange to be packed and transported
- Can you travel in the removals van- if not will to arrange transportation, timing of travel, parking when you arrive
- How are you returning/passing on the keys- is the property being professionally cleaned after you've moved- are you able to be there or will you need to arrange for someone to undertake these actions
- Ensure a time gap between moving and getting the property sorted
- *In the last 3-5 days most of the packing should be completed barre the essentials
- Can you stay elsewhere/would it be easier?
- *the very last night should be a final sweep of the entire property to ensure everything is packed and secure
- *Ensure all important documents are on your person

Need help contact Sparkle UK Relocations we are happy to assist –
'we do what takes your time to do'